Two Hundred and Twenty-Sixth Commencement for the Conferring of Degrees

PHILADELPHIA CIVIC CENTER
CONVENTION HALL

Monday, May 17, 1982

10:00 A.M.

Guests will find this diagram helpful in locating the approximate seating of the degree candidates. The seating roughly corresponds to the order by school in which the candidates for degrees are presented, beginning at top left with the College of Arts and Sciences. The actual sequence is shown in the Contents on the opposite page under Degrees in Course. Reference to the paragraph on page seven describing the colors of the candidates' hoods according to their fields of study may further assist guests in placing the locations of the various schools.

CLOSING REMARKS

The President

THE RED AND BLUE

(By WILLIAM J. GOECKEL, '96 and HARRY E. WESTERVELT, '98)

Come all ye loyal classmen now, in hall and campus through,
Lift up your hearts and voices for the royal Red and Blue.
Fair Harvard has her crimson, old Yale
her colors too,
But for dear Pennsylvania we wear
the Red and Blue.
Hurrah! Hurrah! Pennsylvania! Hurrah for the Red and the Blue;
Hurrah! Hurrah! Hurrah! Hurrah!
Hurrah for the Red and the Blue.

Commencement Notes

A commencement, plainly a beginning, is at the same time a commemorative occasion. No graduation ceremony at the University of Pennsylvania could have more anniversary implications than that in which we participate today. This year of 1982 marks the three hundredth birthday of Philadelphia, founded by William Penn on the edge of the rich forested land of the Lenni Lenape Indians, and of the commonwealth which, together with the University, bears the name of the Quaker colonizer and man of peace.

Although it was the sons of the founder of our city and state who, in 1755, chartered the young College and nurtured the growth of Benjamin Franklin's educational project with gifts of land, books, and scientific apparatus, it was the philosophy of toleration and the nonsectarian spirit of their father (to which Franklin's own beliefs were, of course, akin) which gave the College, later the University of Pennsylvania, a character unique among the infant academies of learning in the New World.

As the Class of 1982 recalls the tercentenary of the settlement of the city in which they have received their education, it can also look back to a bicentenary of the University's own—the Commencement of 1782. On March 21 in that year, a century after the landing of Penn and while the American nation was still at war with Great Britain, the University of Pennsylvania graduated in its hall on Fourth Street sixteen Bachelors of Arts and eight Doctors of Medicine and conferred six honorary degrees. The ceremony was attended by "his excellency general Washington, and his family" in the company of the Minister of France and of Major General Baron von Steuben. Another convocation in the same year should be noted as a second important anniversary. In December, the University conferred its first two Doctor of Laws degrees. The recipients were the Chevalier (later Marquis) de Chastellux, Major General of the French forces in America, and Francois Barbé-Marbois, Consul of France.

By the time another century had passed, the University of Pennsylvania had been for ten years at home on a new campus across the Schuylkill River in West Philadelphia. Lacking an auditorium larger than the chapel in College Hall, Commencement exercises were held at the Academy of Music in the center of the city and degree candidates, in procession, walked twenty blocks to receive their academic rewards. The trustees and faculty, older and in some cases frailer, rode in horse-drawn carriages.

They made the trip twice for two ceremonies were held in 1882. The first, in March, graduated the majority of the medical candidates. Among the 118 Americans, three Canadians, and one Brazilian seated on the stage that day was Nathan Francis Mossell, of Lockport, New York, Penn's first black medical degree recipient, later a distinguished Philadelphia physician and hospital founder. As the diploma was handed to the man who had faced and conquered overt prejudice during much of his student career, the entire audience accorded him an immense ovation.

At the principal Commencement, held on June 15, the University bestowed forty-eight undergraduate degrees, seven certificates of proficiency, and fifteen Master of Arts degrees. In addition, thirty-seven Bachelors of Law, five Doctors of Medicine, and four Doctors of Philosophy received their honors and three Doctor of Laws degrees were conferred. Among the candidates was one woman.

Martha P. Hughes was there as recipient of the B.S. degree given, in fact, for graduate work, by the Auxiliary Faculty of Medicine. It was but the second degree of any kind awarded by the University to a woman. Already M.D. of Michigan, Dr. Hughes was a Welsh-born Mormon who, at the age of five, crossed the Great Plains with her family enroute to Utah. She was later elected to the Utah Legislature, and is believed to have been the first woman in the world to hold such an office.

A half century later, women were numbered in the hundreds among the 1600 degree candidates from the College and twelve Schools and programs of the University who assembled in "the Municipal Auditorium," as Convention Hall was then called, for the 1932 Commencement. The ten recipients of honorary degrees included Mrs. Mary Louise Curtis Bok, president of the Curtis Institute of Music, who was given a doctorate of humane letters, and Justice Benjamin Nathan Cardozo, of the United States Supreme Court, who received a doctor of laws degree.

The University mace, the symbol of authority of the University Corporation, is carried at the head of the academic procession by the Secretary of the University. It was the gift of the family of William Morrison Gordon, M.D. 1910. It is adorned with the seal and arms of the University, the Penn and Franklin coats-of-arms, a depiction of the Rittenhouse orrery, and a thistle symbolizing the early ties of the University with Scotland.

New to the ceremony this year will be the wearing by the President of his badge of office, a silver medallion of which one face is engraved, like the mace, with the University seal. The obverse of the President's badge bears the "orrery seal," designed in 1782—another anniversary for the Class of 1982—by Francis Hopkinson, A.B. 1757, signer of the Declaration of Independence. The badge, suspended on a chain composed of silver links, was given by the Honorable Thomas S. Gates, A.B. 1928, LL.D. 1956, trustee emeritus.

Academic dress stems from the clerical robes of the Middle Ages, when the hood was worn raised for protection in drafty halls. The American code of academic dress was developed in 1895 by an intercollegiate commission and has been modified over the years, most recently in 1960.

The bachelor's gown is relatively simple and has long, pointed sleeves. Master's gowns were formerly distinguished by long, dangling sleeves with a slit at the elbow through which the arm emerged; an opening may now be made at the wrist, and both versions are in general use. The doctoral gown is a more elaborate costume marked by velvet panels down the front and around the neck as well as by three velvet bars on the bell-shaped sleeves. The mortarboard cap has been standard in the United States though soft caps are coming into use; doctors may wear a gold tassel, but all others wear black. Some institutions have in recent years authorized doctors' gowns in colors other than the customary black; holders of the Pennsylvania Ph.D. degree may now wear red and blue gowns.

The hood is lined with silk in the colors of the institution which granted the highest degree held by the wearer, and the color of the bordering velvet indicates the field of study to which the degree pertains. Pennsylvania graduates wear a hood lined in red with a blue chevron. Degrees will be conferred today in: Arts, white; Science golden yellow; Business Administration, mustard; Education, light blue; Fine Arts, brown; Philosophy, dark blue; Medicine, green; Law, purple; Dental Medicine, lilac; Veterinary Medicine, gray; Social Work, citron.
